DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' arguments, filed 8/5/2008, have been fully considered. Rejections and/or objections not reiterated from previous office actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections and/or objections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set presently being applied to the instant application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103-New Claims 1-16, 20 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Liu et al., (US 2002/0025126) in view of Sowers et al., (Hypertension 2001) and Parissis et al., (International Journal of Cardiology 2002).

Liu et al. teach the compounds instantly claimed. For example, Liu discloses compounds of Formula I, wherein R1=CH₂Ph, R2a and R2b=H and Cy=phenyl substituted with phenyl (see Example 30, at pg. 18). Liu also discloses compounds of Formula I, wherein R1=CH₂CH₂Ph, R2a and R2b=H and Cy=phenyl substituted with -O-CH₂-quinoline (see Example 11, at pg. 15). Liu also teaches that these compounds are protein tyrosine kinase PTP1B inhibitors useful in treating autoimmune diseases, acute and chronic inflammatory diseases, osteoporosis, obesity, cancer, malignant diseases, and type I and type II diabetes. (See abstract and [0227].)

Liu et al. differs from the instant claims insofar as it does not teach treating coronary obstruction or peripheral vasoconstriction.

Sowers et al. teach that cardiovascular diseases, including atherosclerosis (coronary obstruction), are a major cause of mortality in persons with diabetes. (See abstract and HOPE trial at pg. 1055.) They also teach that hypertension and endothelial dysfunction are also strongly associated with diabetes patients. (See id.) They go on to state that each of these diseases serves to exacerbate the other. (See pg. 1053, right col., lines 1-3.)

Sowers et al. do not teach a compound of formula I.

Parissis et al. teach that peripheral vasoconstriction is associated with endothelial dysfunction and hypertension. Patients with hypertension often have a high circulation of endothelin-1, which can result in peripheral vasoconstriction. (See pg. 17, right col. 3rd paragraph to pg. 18, left col. 1st paragraph.)

Parissis et al. do not teach a compound of formula I.

It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to administer the compounds of Liu for the treatment of coronary obstruction and peripheral vasoconstriction, since they are problems associated with diabetes. Administering the compounds of Liu to diabetic patients with atherosclerosis and/or hypertension would also treat coronary obstruction and peripheral vasoconstriction.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-19 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection above.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
